Joel's Vision Arts & Music Scholarship

OVERVIEW

BEGINNINGS:

Joel Anderson created this fund in April 2012 to broaden opportunities for individuals with different learning needs to discover and cultivate their inner talents and dreams. Joel is a San Diego-based artist, musician, and speaker who empowers those with autism and motivates all of us to 'change the world' with our own unique strengths.

Coast Music Therapy, a San Diego-based agency that had the pleasure of serving Joel as a student, has provided volunteer efforts and an initial donation to bring his vision of a scholarship fund to fruition. This fund offers individuals with special needs the opportunity to participate in music and art programs such as music therapy, expressive arts therapy, art, music lessons, drama, or dance.

The Crimson Treatment & Research Center embraced Joel's vision and is helping to make it a reality by administering the fund, including the coordination of donors, applicants, the scholarship review committee, and recipients.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARD DETAILS:

- May cover up to $500 per recipient.
- Applicants may apply funds to music and/or arts programs of their choosing, so long as such programs are tailored to individuals with special needs and administered or supervised by a professional trained in therapeutic techniques or education of individuals with disabilities.
- Monies will be allocated directly to the music/art program(s); checks will not be issued to the individual applicant or family.
- CTRC will make every effort to assure the student receives the services designated in the scholarship application, but may not be affiliated with the agency providing such services and makes no representations as to the quality or suitability of any program for which a scholarship is awarded.
- Priority is given to applicants with documented financial hardship.
- Scholarships will not cover late fees. Applicants are responsible for ensuring scholarship applications are submitted with sufficient time for Board review prior to the regular registration deadlines of the programs selected.
- Although applicants who are awarded this or other CTRC scholarships may be considered for future CTRC scholarships, priority will be given to those who have not received a CTRC scholarship in the past.

Joel's Vision Arts & Music Scholarship

LETTER FROM JOEL ANDERSON

My name is Joel Anderson, and I live in Fallbrook, California. I want to encourage you to be creative for all the talents that God has given you. I have been blessed with opportunities to grow and share my talents, and I want other children to have the chance to do the same.

I've been drawing since I was five years old and painting since I was eleven. Books and videos that show historic art masterpieces with famous artists like Leonardo Da Vinci, Pablo Picasso, Vincent Van Gogh, and Michelangelo inspired me to paint and be creative. I first started my art business selling my art and cards in the year 2000. I can use my talents for many things. I am a volunteer for Autism Tree Project Foundation. In 2003, they commissioned me to do art for their fundraising events, art shows, and corporations. I also donate art to raise money for them. I give speeches to tell everyone about my journey with autism and about Autism Awareness.

My goal in life is to encourage students of all ages about how to stick up for someone in need and to be a friend to persons young and old with disabilities, and not be a bully. I do this by giving speeches to kids at schools. I read stories I have written and illustrated and I teach them how to draw if they like art. I sing to them the song I wrote "It Makes My Day Having You as a Friend" and the kids get to sing along with me, and I sing and show the video I produced to go along with "The Colors of My Mind".

Both of these songs I wrote and composed while studying at Coast Music Therapy. CMT and Vanessa helped me to find my "voice" in many different ways like singing, writing, learning to play the piano, and stage performances. I am blessed that I can now use those skills to encourage people all over the world.

My song "The Colors of My Mind" had a world premier at The 2011 International Naturally Autistic People Awards in Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. It has also been published in two editions of The Art of Autism by Debbie Hosseini and Keri Bowers.

My art has won awards and been published in books. I've been on TV and the news and radio. I have had the honor of receiving two special letters from Senators from our United States Government. In 2010, I won the International Naturally Autistic People Awards for Community Achievement. In 2011, I was one of the hosts for the awards ceremony, where I also got to sing and dance, and lead an art workshop. Now in 2012, I am an International Ambassador for ANCA.

Currently, I am studying graphic design and animation in college. I am working on getting my three books published. Let me leave you with this encouragement, "Be the best you can be..." If you like art, try drawing on paper or on the computer; try painting with acrylic, gouache or watercolor; or sculpt with clay. If you like music, sing or try an instrument. If you like animation and filmmaking, you can try to animate, do stop-motion, or make movies with your cameras. You can also write poems if you like poetry or tell a story. Just try and don't ever give up!

You can change the world.

Sincerely,
Joel Anderson
